

From: James Waskom
Sent: Thursday, January 04, 2018 11:15 AM
To: Kevin Reeves; Chuck Brown; Thomas Harris; Glenn Curtis
Subject: FW: BAYOU BRIDGE: 4 JAN 2018 Louisiana activist group outlines 2018 focus areas

Categories: RESPONSIVE

FYI

From: Buren Ric Moore
Sent: Thursday, January 04, 2018 10:01 AM
To: James Waskom; Casey Tingle; Christina Dayries; Christopher Guilbeaux; Kevin Breaux; Jason Lachney; _GOHSEP-Regional Support Section
Cc: Kelli Polk; Gallo, Stephanie (NO) (FBI); Gabriel Tate
Subject: BAYOU BRIDGE: 4 JAN 2018 Louisiana activist group outlines 2018 focus areas

Louisiana activist group outlines 2018 focus areas

The Louisiana Bucket Brigade has identified three main focus areas for action in 2018: “Exposing and unravelling Big Oil’s jobs myth, organizing faith communities to participate in a year of prayer for Cancer Alley, and expanding our air monitoring program.”

Organizers noted that “in this past year, with your help, we have successfully fought to pre-empt the expansion of a polluting refinery in St. Rose, organized public opposition to the proposed Bayou Bridge Pipeline, and joined other groups in suing the EPA to expedite implementation of an important chemical safety rule, among other achievements. And starting on January 1, we’re right back at it, redoubling our efforts to safeguard our environment and protect the health and safety of our fellow Louisianans.”

On 4 January 2018 the Brigade will live stream from a hearing regarding the Bayou Bridge Pipeline at St. James Parish starting at 12.15pm. “Hear from local residents, like Pastor Joseph, who would be impacted by the pipeline as well as representatives from the Tulane Environmental Law Clinic who are righteously helping to STOP IT. SPREAD THE WORD!

The Brigade is also supporting the L’eau Est La Vie Pipeline occupation camp that has been established to oppose the Bayou Bridge pipeline on its route.

Lt. General Russel Honoré of the GreenARMY has circulated a fundraising appeal for the Brigade, noting that they are a key member of his GreenARMY.

BUREN R. (Ric) MOORE, SGM (R)
GOHSEP Intelligence Officer
Louisiana State Analytical & Fusion Exchange (LA-SAFE) Liaison
7667 Independence Blvd.
Baton Rouge, LA 70806

Office: 225.925.3674
Cell: 225.936.0404
Fax: 225.925.4766
buren.moore@la.gov

In the case of terrorism, to wait for an indication of crime before investigating it is to wait too long. There is no guarantee of success, but there has to be a guarantee of effort. Let's make it hard to hurt us. If you see something suspicious, report it.

From: James Waskom
Sent: Wednesday, December 20, 2017 10:19 AM
To: Chuck Brown
Subject: FW: L'Eau est la Vie is more formally organized (Bayou Bridge) with vetting process.

Categories: RESPONSIVE

FYI

From: Buren Ric Moore
Sent: Wednesday, December 20, 2017 9:14 AM
To: James Waskom; Casey Tingle; Christina Dayries; Christopher Guilbeaux; Jason Lachney; Kevin Breaux; _GOHSEP-Regional Support Section
Subject: L'Eau est la Vie is more formally organized (Bayou Bridge) with vetting process.

Meanwhile, No Bayou Bridge is organizing a resistance camp, which they call L'Eau est la Vie, French for "water is life." Unlike the Standing Rock protest camp, L'Eau est la Vie is more formally organized. Instead of merely showing up, the indigenous-led camp requires that they be first vetted. The vetting process claims to include a written application, a phone interview, and both webinar and in-person training on topics including swamp survival skills, anti-oppression, and "direct action." The application asks potential protesters if they have participated in resistance camps before, have received direct action training, or have previous organizing experience.

"If Energy Transfer Partners wants to provoke a giant, then that's what they will get," said Dallas Goldtooth"

"The vetting process claims to include a written application, a phone interview, and both webinar and in-person training on topics including swamp survival skills, anti-oppression, and "direct action."

<http://www.insidesources.com/bayou-bridge-pipeline-gets-final-permit-protesters-file-lawsuits-begin-building-camp/>

GOHSEP Intelligence Officer
Louisiana State Analytical & Fusion Exchange (LA-SAFE) Liaison
7667 Independence Blvd.
Baton Rouge, LA 70806
Office: 225.925.3674
Cell: 225.936.0404
Fax: 225.925.7501

buren.moore@la.gov

In the case of terrorism, to wait for an indication of crime before investigating it is to wait too long. There is no guarantee of success, but there has to be a guarantee of effort. Let's make it hard to hurt us. If you see something suspicious, report it.